

NALSC Membership Growth

by David S. Garber, Esq.

Legal search professionals increasingly recognize the importance of membership in NALSC. New members are attracted by our commitment to upholding the highest ethical standards and they value the opportunity for professional growth offered by the robust programming at our annual conference and our fall symposium in New York. Our members often identify relationship building and business collaboration with other legal search professionals throughout the United States as very real and tangible benefits of NALSC membership.

NALSC welcomed 15 new members in 2016 and, as of January 2017, we have 128 search firm members, 1 affiliate member, 8 branch office members, 5 individual members, 18 supporting members (law firms) and 3 associate members (vendors).

Our new members in 2016 are geographically diverse, reflecting a continuing trend as our organization is recognized as the standard bearer in the legal search profession. Following is a list of our new members in 2016 and the states in which they are based:
